

Our Breakfast Club Programme

Find out how to get involved

More than half a million children go to school hungry in the UK.

Since 1999, Greggs Foundation has provided free breakfasts to primary school children in communities where income is low and food insecurity is high.

We believe giving kids a good start to the day gives them a good start in life.

It kick-starts their day in a positive way and does so much more than filling their tummies.

Supports parents and guardians

Provides a positive effect on health

Improves the ability to learn

Improves attendance

Promotes bonding between year groups

Develops children's relationships with staff

Promotes long-term healthy eating habits

Positively impacts overall diet quality

And that's not all. Schools that join the Breakfast Club Programme can now access:

Hardship grants

Support with white goods, beds and bedding, clothing, supermarket vouchers and more.

The Holiday Activity Fund

Supports children through school holidays.

We also support education in health and the environment and fund a free programme for schools called Agents of Change, with our partners Rethink Food.

How Can You Help?

Greggs Foundation is supported by Greggs and its staff across the UK, but we also work in partnership with businesses to help support the Breakfast Club Programme.

This includes partners from Greggs' supply chain, shareholders, trade bodies, social housing groups and independent businesses.

We'll bring the bread, you bring your skills

Each business brings their own strengths and skills to the table, and by coming together, we learn from each other and do our best to support children in our communities.

It's a real partnership, with everyone working together to take an active, more responsible role in our communities.

We'd love for you to get involved

You'll have the opportunity to:

Support a school in your community

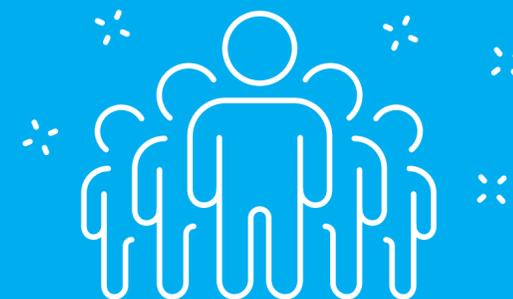

Share your expertise, skills and experience

Get involved in volunteering projects

Help address child poverty and food insecurity

Support kids who could potentially become future employees

Helping to support your company's ESG agenda

As a partner, you can fund a school in your community or near your workplace, or simply provide a one-off donation.

Our Breakfast Club Manager, Lynne Hindmarch, would love to tell you more about how our Breakfast Club Programme works and how you can get involved.
